- ⁷¹ The research establishing this point comes mostly from the Barna Group. See, for example, "New Marriage and Divorce Statistics Released," March 31, 2008, and "American Lifestyles Mix Compassion and Self-Oriented Behavior," February 5, 2007, <http://www.barna.org/FlexPage.aspx?Page=BarnaUpdates>. There are reasons to believe that the differences between Christians and the general population are somewhat greater when the focus is narrowed to regular churchgoers who affirm the importance of Christian faith in their lives.
